There were some issues with the product when I first received it. The quality was not what I expected, and the customer service was not helpful. I was disappointed with the purchase and the experience. I would not recommend this product to anyone. I am not sure if the company will ever address these issues or if they will continue to ignore the feedback. Support type: Technical

Description

There are many different types of support tickets that can be created in the system. Some are for general inquiries, some are for technical issues, and some are for sales leads. The system allows you to categorize tickets based on the type of issue and the company that is reporting the issue. This helps you to track and manage your support tickets more effectively. You can also use the system to generate reports on your support tickets, which can help you to identify areas where you need to improve your support services.
